PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

411 W. Reiman
Seymour TX 76380-2439
(817) 888-5156

This message marks the end of my first year as the president of this prestigious organization. I want to take this opportunity to thank each of you officers and members who have helped me with this formidable task for the past year or so. Little does the average member realize how many countless hours of effort are expended by your elected officers in serving your interests. These folks work long hours at their own expense doing what needs to be done and when it needs to be done. If there have been any complaints from these unsung "heroes" this past year, I have not heard them. The administrative requirements of managing an organization the size of TNA and accounting for its numerous assets is awesome! Perhaps none of us can appreciate any of these unpaid voluntary tasks until we have actually experienced them. I know that I certainly have an appreciation for those who have gone before me now that I have worn their moccasins and have walked in their footsteps down the administrative trail.

The only disquieting part of this job — if there is one — is finding folks who will do various little tasks when they are asked. Finding replacement officers, particularly governors, and other people to serve on temporary committees is a particularly distasteful part of my duties. I know that many of you have both the time and the talent to serve others but identifying you and convincing you to serve is most difficult. This is your association and I'd think that you would be proud to be a vital part of it. You should be eager to help chart its direction and guide it to become the best numismatic organization in the nation.

If you are serious enough about numismatics to belong to TNA I'd think that you would be proud to serve it as well. If you wish to help us manage our association and move forward, let me hear from you. I've got a task for you that you will enjoy doing. It may be a small or it may be a large task. Regardless it will be important. As Joan Rivers says, "Let's Talk." Drop me a line or call me. I'd love to hear from you.

TO ALL TNA MOTHERS — HAPPY MOTHER'S DAY

In scanning articles of interest in Dallas and Garland newspapers relative to numismatics, Frank Clark of Carrollton, Texas, came across some unusual items and submitted them to the TNA NEWS. We pass them on to you:

One of the biggest stories ever reported in the Garland News was in the April 2, 1927 issue which reported the bank robbery of The First National on April 1 — April Fool's Day.

A lone bandit walked into the bank which was on the northeast corner of the town square. He jammed a gun into cashier W. C. Jamison's ribs and demanded all of the money. Jamison handed over almost $5,000. The robber only wanted notes and he did not want the silver coin.

The robber locked Jamison, Mrs. Oscar Morrison and another man in the vault. The bandit then left the bank, got into a car and drove west out of town.

J. L. Ford showed up at the bank a little later. He did not find anybody, so he notified the police.

The robber overturned his vehicle during his getaway. He was arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to life. He did not serve a full sentence. His name was R. R. Carter.

It was also reported that since it was April 1, several people earlier had walked into the bank and had said, "This is a bank robbery!" and the bank officers had always taken it for an April Fool's Day joke, until it actually happened.

The president of the bank, L. L. Caldwell, was at home eating lunch during the robbery. He was notified of the robbery over the phone. He thought it was another April Fool's Day joke and he finished his lunch not thinking twice about it. He arrived later at the bank and found out it was no joke!

On November 11, 1887 in Dallas at 4 o'clock in the morning, the safe of the New Idea Saloon was blown open and $2,000 in cash was taken. Two holes were drilled through the heavy iron plate of the door and a quantity of gun powder was inserted into the crevices between the outside and inside heavy iron plates. Several neighbors heard the explosion. The bartender of the saloon, who was sleeping three doors east, did not hear the blast.

North Texas National Bank, "the finest bank building in the southwest," was to be completed by January 1, 1889. The first floor of the six story building was to feature hardwood and polished red marble, polished brass rails, tile floors and marble borders on the walls. The ceiling was to be finished in hardwood with polished oil finish.

For several days the street car drivers have been victimized by a gang of counterfeiters paying their fare in spurious half dollars and quarters and receiving free rides and some loose change to help them along in the world. The average street car driver, though accustomed to holding coin between his teeth, cannot tell silver from lead and is therefore easily duped, but the president of the company, who has long been a banker, is not so easily deceived

Counterfeiting operations that had scattered thousands of half dollars manufactured with diabolical skill over six states, including Texas, were broken up when combined city and county law enforcement forces joined with U.S. Secret Service agents in a dawn raid on a house just beyond Ledbetter Drive on Eagle Ford Road

COINS — TAXES

By the middle of the 16th century, enough silver was being produced in what is now Central Germany to permit coins of large size. Until then the taler, or dollar, had been the largest coin in circulation, but now new denominations — double, triple and even 10 taler pieces — were being minted. They varied from very thick to thin and wide, and were called "loesers." At first the conventional portrait on one side with the coat of arms on the reverse was used for the wide coins. Later, during the 17th century, fanciful designs began to appear, among them a ship of good fortune a detailed design of a silver mine in full operation and various animals of the forest.

These attractive designs made the coins especially desirable to the wealthy merchants who began to collect them. The Dukes of Brunswick and Lueneburg, whose domains were in Central Germany, found the coins would also serve for tax purposes to support their innumerable petty wars.

Whenever one of the loesers, or large coins, was purchased, a careful notation was made of the buyer's name and address. Then, if the ruler needed money and levied a tax, he knew exactly who possessed large coins. When the citizens refused to invest in loesers, the Dukes made it a crime not to purchase them. The Thirty Years' War (1618-1648) brought inflation, making silver far too precious to be used in such large coins and the tax scheme ceased. Although double or triple talers are often found today, the five and 10 taler coins are much rarer and more valuable.

CHINESE YUAN

The 1933-34 "Sun Yat-sen Memorial silver dollar (Yuan) is the last of China's "large crown" silver dollars.

China's first truly national silver dollars did not begin to be issued until 1912. The design is the only accurate likeness on coin of the "Father of China," Sun Yat-sen, a leader revered by Chinese the world over. The "Junk" reverse captures the romantic flavor of Old China. While plentiful when new, only a small proportion survived the melting pot

CHARLES II —
King of Scotland, England, France & Ireland

The Late Lee Grossman
San Antonio, Texas

Charles II was born in 1630 and was the eldest surviving son of Charles I and Henrietta Marie, daughter of Henry IV of France.

He commanded royalist troops in the western part of England during its civil war, but was defeated so badly at Naseby by the Parliamentary Army that he fled to the continent in March 1648. His years of exile were spent in Holland and France.

In February 1649, Scotland proclaimed him as its king, less than a month after the beheading of his father, and invited him to come to Edinburgh. After being virtually a prisoner at the hands of Argyll, he landed in June 1650, and his coronation took place at Scone on January 1, 1651, following his acceptance of the Scottish Covenant. Nine months later, Oliver Cromwell met his forces at Worcester and totally vanguished him.

After many hairbreath escapes and exciting adventures, he contrived to reach France and safety once more. These escapes and adventures contributed to the change in the English popular feeling toward him. Reports of his carefree life in France added to the good opinion, which began to be entertained of him in a country somewhat oppressed by excessive Puritanism

Not long after Cromwell's death — when time enough had shown the madequacy of Richard Cromwell to carry on the work of his father, General Monk threw his influence onto the scale on behalf of the "legitimate" prince — and as a result of Monk's intervention, Charles was proclaimed king at Westminster on May 8, 1660. He came to London, signed away a large portion of his kingly rights, and agreed to a general amnesty for all political offenders, except the regicides, in return for a yearly crown income of about $6,000,000! On April 23, 1661, he was crowned.

From then on, he was a "merry monarch" who may be said to have enjoyed himself "brilliantly." The remaining 24 years of his life were spent in dissipation of all sorts.

His marriage with Catharine of Braganza, in May 1662, was without issue, but Charles had numerous children by his various mistresses, and he conferred no noble rank upon them His sons became the Dukes of Southhampton, Richmond, St. Albans, Grafton and Monmouth.

He was succeeded by his brother, James II, on February 6, 1685.

Nearly ten years of exile had passed before his return to London and coronation in April 1661 after the collapse of the Commonwealth, during which period no coins were struck and the mint was closed from about 1650 until 1663.

The Scottish coinage began only with the Restoration in 1660. No gold coinage was struck, but pieces in silver and copper were. The denomination in silver were the 4 merk, 2 merk, merk and half merk All were the same type, with the laureate and cuirassed bust of the king on the obverse and on the reverse was a crown formed by four shields.

Copper coinage included the bawbee of 6 pence with the royal bust and crowned thistle. The turner (or bodle) was equal to twopence, and the name was probably taken from the French copper coin "tournois." The turner was issued with a crown over CR with the mark of value "II" and a thistle.

My coin is a copper twopence with no date. It is in Very Good condition. On the obverse side, a crown above the large letters "CR," which is in the center. To the right is the Roman numeral "II." Around the edge, are the letters, "CAR DG SCOT ANG F ET HIB R," which translates to "CHARLES, BY THE GRACE OF GOD, KING OF SCOTLAND, ENGLAND, FRANCE AND IRELAND."

The reverse side has a thistle in the center with the lettering around it: "NEMO ME IMPVNE LACESSET" (NO ONE INJURES ME WITH IMPUNITY). It is listed as SEABY 5625 in "COINS OF SCOTLAND, IRELAND AND THE ISLANDS."

Charles II was king of Scotland and of Ireland from 1649 to 1685; king of England from 1660 to 1685.

NOTE: Sarah Ferguson, who became the wife of Great Britain's Prince Andrew in the summer of 1986, is a direct descendant of King Charles II.

CANADIAN COINAGE

The coinage of Canada began in 1858 and prior to that time, she was a colony of England and before that, France. Up until 1908, all coins were minted in Great Britain. The first monarch to appear on the official coinage was Queen Victoria, 1858-1901. Issued during that time were large cents, 5¢ silver, 10¢, 20¢, 25¢ and 50¢. The 20¢ pieces are the rarest of Canadian coins.

COLLECTING TIPS

The importance of collecting coins in the finest possible condition cannot be overemphasized and preserving them is equally important. Good judgement alone would dictate that coins should not be abused, mishandled or stored loosely with other coins which can cause nicks, dents and scratches.

When handling coins, they should always be held between two fingers on the rim and never on the face where fingermarks can easily damage the coin's surface.

PERIOD ART

The ancient engravers of coinage dies were artisans of the highest order. Many of the coins they created are still regarded as outstanding examples of the art of that period, and the people of that day were well aware of the beauty of these coins.

THE DOLLAR AND THE CENT

The bright silver dollar and the little red cent
Side by side, down the street they went.
Said the bright silver dollar ('cause dollars do talk),
To the little red cent as they strolled down the walk,

"I'm bright and shiney and good as gold,
But you are dull and red, and soiled, and old.
I'm worth a hundred times as much as you,
Even if you were shiney and new.

I can buy furs, and diamond rings,
And houses and cars, and other good things.
I go to the opera and to exciting races,
And ball games, and prize fights, and fine eating places.

Written over my head is, 'In God We Trust',
'E Pluribus Unum and Liberty' surround my bust.
Upon me are written these words too,
But I'm in society, and more important than you."

The smug silver dollar held his head high,
While the dirty red cent began to cry.
The bright silver dollar wiped the tears and the dirt
On the little red penny's soiled little shirt.

The penny said, "Thank you, and let us be friends
Before we come to some very bad ends."
So they merrily rolled, with their hearts all a-flutter,
Then the little red cent began to stutter.

Stuttered the little penny to the bright silver dollar
As he turned his head in his soiled little collar,
"You may be bright and shiney, and worth much more than me,
You can buy nice things for pretty dames, up in society

But 'E Pluribus Unum' and 'In God We Trust'
Might as well be written in the horrid dust.
You think you are smart, and better than me,
But you are wrong, just wait and see.

Parents like me, because I can buy
Penny things for their little small fry.
They give their kids pennies to spend or to hoard
Or take to church to offer the Lord.

I pay taxes in stores, but you're in a jam.
You pay bigger taxes to Uncle Sam
Now I'm good as you, and better too,
For I go to church more often than you."

Just this past weekend Eleanor and I were invited to attend the annual Waco Coin Club show. Others from the TNA official family who attended were Lyman Bartee, who is a past president of TNA, our second vice president Mike Greenspan, who was accompanied by his nice wife, Joanne; the TNA District 17 Governor, Glenn Hardin, and Joe Olson, TNA's legal advisor. Waco always has one of the best smaller shows around and this one was no exception. Most of the dealers seemed to be doing a pretty active business. In attendance were a lot of TNA members from the surrounding area clubs.

Speaking of clubs, Glenn Hardin reports that he has been successful in organizing a coin club in Killeen - Fort Hood. Glenn has been the district governor only a short time and his interest and efforts have paid off. This new club will soon join the ranks of other TNA member clubs. Glenn is to be congratulated for his fast start. This is the first new club to be organized in that district in a good many years. Keep up the good work, Glenn.

One of the highlights of the Waco show is an all you can eat bar-b-que which is held Saturday evening for the dealers and guests. Eleanor and I have always found this activity most enjoyable. We feel very much at home with the fine Waco club members, many of whom we count among our good friends. One thing we have noted in years past is the participation in the show by the club members. Most of them serve in some capacity and this adds so much to making the show so successful. Personally, I think the bar-b-que given for the dealers is a truly nice way to say, "Thank you for your attendance." I know of at least one other club which hosts a supper for the dealers who attend its show and that is the Gateway Coin Club of San Antonio. There may be others of whom I'm not aware. If there are, please let me know.

When you read this, TNA's 32nd convention will be history. I hope many of you had the opportunity to attend and were able to add something, a coin, a token, a piece of currency, or whatever, to your collecting interests.

Have you recently asked someone who is a non-member to join TNA? Help TNA grow by having with you an application for membership. You'd be surprised how easy it is to sign up a new member if you simply ask that person to join.

STORY OF COINAGE COVERS 2000 YEARS

Since the Renaissance, coins have been a unique source of fascination to historians and collectors alike. From the denarius and doubloon to the deutschmark and dollar, coins not only provide illuminating insight into ancient cultures and societies, but also chart the remarkable development of world trade and monetary systems.

Now a new book, THE COIN ATLAS, by Joe Cribb, Barrie Cook and Ian Carradice, provides the first country-by-country account of world coinage, from its beginnings almost two thousand years ago in the 7th century B.C., to the present day.

THE COIN ATLAS traces the evolution of the four separate coinage traditions of the Mediterranean, India, China and Islam — bringing to life the origins and progress of coinage in every country in the world.

From the artistry of ancient Greek coins, the siege of money of the English Civil War, and the hoe-and-knife-shaped coins of ancient China to the massive gold coins of India and the "holey dollar" of the New South Wales, THE COIN ATLAS covers every aspect of the world's use and making of coins.

Included: when and why new currencies and denominations were introduced; what coins were made of; how coins were designed and inscribed; and how successful coins first were.

In addition, THE COIN ATLAS, includes information gathered by a team of expert numismatists from the British Museum on the first coins, first decimal coins, main mints and types of currency.

Publication date is May 10, is hardbound with 337 pages, 1,800 illustrations and 110 color maps. It is priced at $40.00. For more information, write to Facts On File, Inc., 460 Park Avenue South, New York, NY 10016.

PILGRIM HALF DOLLAR

In 1920 occurred the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims on the coast of New England. The town of Plymouth, Mass., where they landed from the Mayflower, celebrated the event in 1921 by several pageants that attracted national attention.

In commemoration of this historic event, a special half dollar was struck and turned over to the Pilgrim Tercentenary Commission for distribution through the National Shawmut Bank of Boston. These were placed on the market at $1 each and bear the dates, 1920 and 1921.

During 1920 there were 200,112 pieces struck at the Philadelphia mint, and in 1921, 100,053 additional of the same design were coined, of which 80,000 were remelted, leaving 20,052 outstanding.

REVERSE: A side view of the "Mayflower" sailing to left, around the edge, "Pilgrim, Tercentenary Celebration, 1620-1920."

In 1921 the same was coined as above, but with the year 1921 introduced on the obverse in left field. As the previous piece bore only anniversary dates 1690 1920, the addition of this second year is interesting. Most collectors agree that it is a rather neat design, the only criticism has been that Dallin adopted a sailing vessel of a later period than the original Mayflower.

BIBLICAL DESIGN

In 1923 when new coins were to be issued for the Union of South Africa, those in charge were discussing appropriate designs for these coins and what should be on the reverse. They decided on suitable symbolic designs and when they came to the farthing, one man who had read the Bible thought of that part of Matthew 10, Verse 29 — "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing," so the two sparrows, sitting on the branch of a South African thorn tree, were put on the farthing.

In 1792 the decimal system along with the authorization to establish a mint was approved by the Coinage Act

RARE TOKENS

Interest in the transportation branch of numismatics has been on the increase for the past few years. Even non-collectors like to save fare tokens as souvenirs of cities they have visited, while coin collectors find that the well-struck pieces make an interesting and attractive display. A few transportation tokens will dress up a coin collection and afford its owner many enjoyable hours of recreation.

ELECTROTYPES

An electrotype is a facsimile of a coin produced by the electrolytic method. A wax mold of the original is suspended in a plating bath until a thin shell of metal is formed. This shell is then backed with a base metal (usually type-metal) and the obverse and reverse are joined to form the replica. Electrotypes exist of nearly all rare coins.

HERITAGE AWARDS YN SCHOLARSHIP

Heritage Rare Coin Galleries of Dallas has announced the winner in its essay competition sponsored for young numismatists.

Trevor Robins of Xenia, Ohio was selected as the winning entrant for his essay on the topic "How Collecting Rare Coins Has Helped Me Academically."

"I was real happy to win," Robins said upon hearing of his selection. Robins is a 14-year-old ninth grade student at Central Junior High in Xenia.

"We are proud to offer this type of scholarship as part of Heritage's ongoing support and encouragement of young people in numismatics," said Steve Ivy, Heritage co-chairman.

Heritage invited collectors aged 17 and younger to participate in the essay competition. Entrants were asked to write about the relationship of collecting coins and academic studies.

Heritage will present Robins with an all-expense-paid scholarship to attend the 1990 American Numismatic Association Summer Seminar program in Colorado Springs, Colo. The program offers a week-long schedule of numismatic seminars with a variety of subjects, including coin grading, coin errors and varieties, the history of numismatics and coin photography. The 1990 Summer Seminar is scheduled July 8-14 at the ANA's headquarters in Colorado Springs.

Robins said he has attended the Summer Seminar twice and will probably attend the coin photography class this year. Robins started collecting coins when he was six years old when his father gave him a few coins from his collection. "By the time I was 11 and had joined the ANA I got very interested in coins," Robins explained. He said his father gave him some coins from relatives who were from Russia and this prompted his interest in the area of Imperial Russian coins. "I wanted to collect something different so I started in the Russian coins."

Robins said his goal in the numismatic field is to be a numismatic curator at the Smithsonian Institution. Robins is a member of the ANA, Russian Numismatic Society, Ukranian Philatelic and Numismatic Society, Blue Ridge Numismatic Association, North Carolina Numismatic Association, Middle Atlantic Numismatic Association, Combined Organizations of Numismatic Error Collectors of America and the Dayton-Kettering Coin Club.

Heritage will present all other entrants with a complimentary one-year subscription to Legacy, a quarterly numismatic magazine published by Ivy Press Inc.

Heritage maintains offices in Dallas, Paris, Dusseldorf, The Netherlands and Switzerland. For further information, call 1-800-872-6467 or write to: Heritage Rare Coin Galleries, Heritage Plaza, Highland Park Village, Dallas, Texas 75205.
